DANGER: Police say they take incidents at level crossings extremely seriously

Crossing safety fears

By DAVID WATKINSON

A WARNING has been issued to road users who risk their lives at level crossings in East Lancashire.

In the past 12 months 10 serious incidents involving both pedestrians and motorists have been recorded by the British Transport Police who police all crossing.

In recent weeks, Lancashire Police also handed a man a caution after he drove across the Rawtenstall West crossing, in New Hall Hey, Rawtenstall, despite the gates beginning to close and signalling the imminent passing of a train.

Dog walker ignored the barriers and stepped out

From June 1, 2010 to June 28, 2011, there have been five incidents at Daisyfield crossing in Blackburn; one incident at Brierfield crossing; one at Manchester Road, Burnley; two at Chaffers crossing in Nelson; and one at Shaw House Farm crossing in Wiltshire.

Offences have included bikes being left on the tracks, barrier operators abused and failure to obey traffic signals.

In August 2010, a dog walker caused a train travelling across Burnley's Manchester Road crossing to come to an emergency stop. The man ignored the warning barriers and walked in front of the train.

Another serious incident at Chaffers crossing in Bakerhouse Road, Nelson, saw a brick thrown through the rear cab of the train.

Luckily the cab was empty and the driver was in the front cab.

Inspector Adrian Yorston said: "During the past 12 months we have recorded 10 incidents at level crossings in the area.

"While this represents fewer than one incident per month, it is still 10 incidents too many and we will continue to give crossings across Lancashire serious attention."

And he vowed to work at reducing incidents of this nature.

E Lancs a 'hotspot' for big cats on prowl

By JON LIVESEY

SIGHTING: An ocelot was possibly seen on Burnley's Brunshaw estate

A big cat was spotted prowling around an East Lancashire housing estate on a summer afternoon, it has been revealed.

The sighting of the four-foot long creature, described as a cross between a tiger, cheetah and leopard, was one of 26 reported to Lancashire Police in the last five years.

The caller told officers the animal, which had a long tail and 'tiger spots', had been running down back streets on the Brunshaw estate, in Burnley.

Suspecting it was a Bengal cat, or ocelot, police contacted the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) to find out if any were licensed in the area.

The out-of-place animal was spotted in Brunshaw Avenue, Burnley, on a June afternoon, but no further sightings were reported.

In October last year, a security guard on a night shift at premises in Lower Darwen told officers he saw a large golden cat, resembling a puma, behind a fence.

Reports also feature sightings of black panthers in Hoghton, and a wild white cat in Hoddlesden.

Pumas in Turton and Waterfoot also feature in the reports.

In Leagram, near Chipping, a man contacted police on four separate occasions in a six-month period to report having seen a puma-like cat with a head the size of a football. On one occasion, he said, the six-foot long animal, which had been following him around, even growled at him.

Almost half of the 26 sightings reported to police were in East Lancashire locations, suggesting the area is something of a big cat 'hotspot'.

The details were revealed to our sister newspaper, the Lancashire Telegraph, under the Freedom of Information Act.

However, the list does not include reports of lions, or jaguars, because searches under those words on police systems brought up a lot of unrelated information.

The 1976 Dangerous Wild Animals Act made it illegal to keep big cats as pets and may have led to some being released by their owners.

Collie attacked by 'fighting dog'

By EMMA CRUCES

A former town hall keeper has told of the terrifying moment a 'fighting-type dog' attacked his long-time pet companion.

Derek Edmondson, 80, was taking his daily walk with his 15-year-old sheepdog Jodie, at Foxhill Bank Nature Reserve, Oswaldtwistle, when the dog attack took place.

Mr Edmondson, who was a public servant for 40 years, said the dog, which appeared to be a Staffordshire Bull Terrier, was being walked by a group of 12 to 14-year-olds. The Jubilee Street resident, who lost his wife Margaret six months ago, has walked the route through the local beauty spot with his pet, named after Jodie Foster, since she was a puppy.

He said: "At first I didn't really notice the children, but when the dog saw Jodie, he just took off. He was dragging the lad who was walking him. He fell down and must have been pulled 30 feet.

"When the lad let go, the dog got hold of Jodie. He just clamped his jaws around her neck. He was double her size and built like a fighting dog. One of the girls from this group managed to pull the dog off. As soon as Jodie was free, she took off into the woods from fear.

"She was bleeding heavily. Luckily she was waiting for me on the path."

TERROR: Derek with Jodie, left, who lost a dangerous amount of blood

Mr Edmondson called on a neighbour for help and took Jodie to a vet in Preston following the attack on the afternoon of Sunday, June 26. Veterinary staff said she had lost a dangerous amount of blood and treated her throughout the night. She has now made a full recovery.

Mr Edmondson, who paid £380 to have his pet treated, said: "I've got her back and that's all that matters to me. I just think it is dangerous for a dog like that to be under the control of children. It should be wearing a muzzle and their parents should be held accountable. If it would go for a dog like that, next time it could be a child. I am lucky she is slowly starting to walk up and down again, but the whole experience left me very frightened."

Police said they had been informed of the incident.

Oswaldtwistle councillor Peter Britcliffe said: "I remember Derek well and he was a very dedicated public servant. I have become very concerned of late at the number of people reporting dog attacks. It is a serious issue."

Diana leaves record label

By CATHERINE PYE

Diana Vickers has left her big-name record label to pursue her indie rock roots.

The 19-year-old star, from Huncoat, was signed to Sony/RCA after making the semi-finals of The X Factor three years ago.

She achieved chart-topping success with debut single Once, and the album Songs From The Tainted Cherry Tree.

However, her last two singles failed to hit the same heights, coming in at 36 and 13.

Now it is believed she wants to develop her Indie style, and rumours are she has been working with Chorley-born Starsailor singer James Walsh.

On her Tumblr blog, Diana confirmed the split from RCA.

She said: "I just want to let you know what the crack is at the moment down in the Vickers camp. Myself and RCA have decided to part company, purely based on a creative level. I will always be really thankful for the time we've spent together and the support they've given me.

"But, I've grown up a lot since the first album and whilst the past couple years have been a lot of fun and a great success, I'm now ready to take a wander down a different, very exciting path! In order to grow, this change has to be made."

She added: "I'm so proud of where the second album is right now and I'm counting down the minutes until it's all ready and you guys can finally hear it.

"I've been having the best time over the past six months – being creative, working with so many inspirational people, falling in love with LA and growing as an artist."

Diana's management team was unavailable for comment.

ACCRINGTON railway station's eco-design has been highly commended in a national award.

Lancashire County Council, which was behind the project, was named winner of the Sustainable Infrastructure Achievement of the Year category at the MJ Local Government Achievement Awards.

TIME-WARP: Jan Plummer (left) with activities co-ordinator Michelle Greenwood and some items already for the 1940s-themed room

Memories from past

By CATHERINE PYE

A TIME-warp room is being created to help dementia sufferers at a Darwen care home.

Staff at Birch Hall Care Centre have been collecting furniture and household gadgets from the 1940s to transport residents back to 'the good old days'.

It is hoped that items such as a gramophone and wartime trinkets will help dementia sufferers tap more easily into memories from the past, giving them a grounding when they are confused.

Unit manager Jan Plummer said: "With dementia patients, they live in the past a lot of the time. We do have a living room, but at the moment it's not very relevant for them, so when we saw the idea in a national newspaper being used successfully, we decided to have a go ourselves."

There are 11 residents of the care home in Birch Hall Avenue who suffer from various forms of dementia.

Classics all Gold for Romantics

Tony Hadley was the frontman for Eighties New Romantic band Spandau Ballet. As a solo act, he and his own band have toured the world to great acclaim. He has a live show on July 23 at the Capesthorne Hall, Cheshire, performing with Rick Astley, Martin Fry (ABC) and Go West.

THIS MUST BE LIKE THE GOOD OLD DAYS FOR YOU, IS IT?
To be honest, it's been going pretty good these past few years. Maybe because the band's got such a good reputation for performing live we're always busy! We tend to surprise people. We play these festivals and people hear us and go 'wow -- I didn't expect that' so there's no real quiet time.

DID YOU ENJOY THE RECENT SPANDAU BALLET REUNION?
Yeah, it was fun. Spandau were back together from October 2009 and finished touring in June 2010. It was nice to see the boys and people enjoyed it.

AT YOUR SHOWS, CAN WE EXPECT SONGS WE KNOW?
I've seen other bands try and be really clever like that and

60 SECONDS WITH ... TONY HADLEY

I'm not a fan. They either rearrange the old songs to the point where they aren't really the old songs any more, or they just play all their new stuff instead. It just doesn't work. If you've got a pedigree with certain songs, people want to hear those songs. They won't get tired of hearing a singer they like singing the songs they love. We find it's the same with the younger kids. They're discovering the classics. It's nice when the next generation are seeking out what came before. If you like music you go back.

Valley rock fest

BIG NAMES: Badly Drawn Boy and, below, The Waterboys

Rossendale's biggest music festival is proving a major hit, with only a limited number of weekend tickets remaining.

The Ramsbottom Festival, from Friday, September 16 to Sunday, September 18, is the North West's newest festival and boasts a host of big-name acts.

Five thousand music fans per day are expected to head to Ramsbottom Cricket Club, where the event will be staged.

Sixties trail-blazers The Animals and Friends headline on the Friday night, Brit Award nominees The Guillemots lead the way on Saturday, and Celtic rockers The Waterboys headline Sunday night.

Although full festival tickets are selling fast, there is still good availability of day tickets.

On Friday night Stax guitar legend Steve Cropper, guitarist with Booker T and the MGs, will take to the stage.

Also confirmed for Friday night is 6Music DJ and presenter Mark Radcliffe, playing with his band the Big Figures.

Saturday's line-up includes singer/songwriter Damon Gough, better known as Badly Drawn Boy, Bolton band Cherry Ghost, Mercury Music Prize-nominated the Young Knives and Manchester's Kid British.

Sunday's line-up has a distinct folk feel to it, with Capercaille, Ahab and the Michael McGoldrick Band all featuring, plus Bellowhead's Sam Sweeney and Hannah James and The Travelling Band. There will also be a second stage featuring local bands.
